Spotlight: Center for Instructional and Behavioral Research in Schools Director: Dr. Terry Scott

The Center for Instructional and Behavioral Research in Schools (CIBRS) engages with the application of scientific methods to understand and prevent student failure and dysfunction. The Center involves collaborations among a wide range of interested parties across the university to focus specifically on prevention efforts as they relate to education – broadly defined as public schooling from pre-school through post-secondary education. The Center provides an impetus and structure for enhancing nationally recognizable research and scholarship in areas that represent pressing social concerns – with a focus on educational experiences from pedagogical, psychological, and social work perspectives.

Office of Research Website

The Research Office has a variety of resources you can reference. Check out the full website here:
<http://louisville.edu/education/research>

Research and funding resources have been compiled for your use and are updated monthly. There are three separate documents for undergraduates, graduate students, and teacher educators.

The undergraduate student resource includes scholarship and research opportunities, some specific to UofL students:

Special thanks to Eric Garrett in the ERTC for his help updating the website!

NVivo Users Group

The CEHD Office of Research and Graduate Studies hosts meetings of interested researchers who would like to learn more about this qualitative data analysis tool. Discussions are informal, and topics of interest are solicited in advance of each meeting. The group gathers as needed in ERTC Room 201C (2nd Floor Porter Building) where the desktops all have NVivo. The group now has a listserv that will be utilized for group communication, to ask questions, and stay connected.

If you would like to be added to the listserv group, please contact Taylor Brown (tayloranne.brown@louisville.edu)

RCR Series

All are welcome to attend this free series which covers responsible conduct of research topics. Each session has at least 1-hour of face-to-face RCR instruction as required by NIH. For more information visit the link below or reach out to Research Integrity 852-2454.

- RCR101 September 20, 3-4pm, KCCTRB 123

Interested in learning more about the dissertation writing camp? Ask Taylor! (tayloranne.brown@louisville.edu)

The staff in the Research Office is equipped to help you with these and a variety of other services. Stop by to say hello and see how we can be of assistance to you!

Transcription Services

The Office of Research regularly receives inquiries from faculty and students about recommended vendors.

We have heard great reviews about Transcription Express! (www.transcriptiontyping.com) and Babbletype (<http://babbletype.com>)

Other recommended resources include:

RM Editing and Research Services (www.RMedit.com) and Landmark Associates Inc. (www.thelai.com).

If anyone has a transcription service to recommend please email (tayloranne.brown@louisville.edu) so we can share with those who are interested.

2018 Doctoral Student Opening Session

The Office of Research welcomed our new doctoral students at The Doctoral Student Opening Session, held on Saturday, August 18th.

This event is held annually and is designed to orient students to doctoral study in the CEHD. Students were provided a brief overview of resources and programs that support doctoral students.

Please also see the School of Interdisciplinary & Graduate Studies website (found here: <http://louisville.edu/graduate/>) for information regarding their opening session.
