Preparing for the CSW and LCSW Examinations

Claude Drouet, LCSW, ACSW

This three-part/day, six hour workshop is designed to help social workers become familiar with the testing format of the certification/licensure process. The workshop also addresses the anxiety that such tests can provoke, and how that anxiety can seriously impair performance on the test. Materials are presented to give participants a clearer idea of what the tests are like.

Please note: it is recommended that you purchase the Association of Social Work Boards (ASWB) Study Guide upon registering for this workshop. This study guide will be referenced and used throughout the workshop sessions. You may purchase this guide at www.aswb.org, or by phone (540) 829-6880.

Seeking Balance: Dealing with Tensions Between Clinical Practice and Legal Responsibility

Claude Drouet, LCSW, ACSW

Managing risk in clinical practice means consistent risk awareness throughout the course of work with clients. And risk awareness begins at the first point-of-contact with the client/potential client. This workshop will look at the ethical principles and regulations that can actually help us with risk awareness/management. A “lofty” goal for today is to be better mesh critical and compassionate thinking. A more specific goal is to consider some dynamics that can go awry during treatment interactions and how we can proactively handle them. There will be three generic case presentations to illustrate points. Participants are welcomed to bring some concerns from their work experience so that we can process these through discussion.
