

When you find a citation, how do you know if it is for a book, a scholarly, journal article, a magazine, etc.? This handout will give you some tips.

BOOK CITATIONS

Book citations will always have a publisher, place of publication, and year of publication.

The Voices of African American Women: The Use of Narrative and Authorial Voice in the Works of Harriet Jacobs, Zora Neale Hurston, and Alice Walker Johnson, Yvonne New York, NY : Peter Lang 1998

TIP: To find this in the library use Minerva, the Library Catalog, and type in the title of the book or the name of the author, last name first.

BOOK CHAPTERS

This citation is for a chapter in a scholarly book. It has a publisher, place of publication and a year of publication, but it also includes two clues which indicate it is a chapter: "In:" and then the name of the book, "ed." for editor (rather than an author). In this case it also includes the pages of the chapter (87-94) and the total number of pages in the book.

Return from the Implants: Cyberpunk's Schizophrenic Future. In: Kraus, Elisabeth (ed. and introd.); 259 pp.; Simulacrum America: The USA and the Popular Media; Camden House, Rochester, NY: 87-94

TIP: To find this in the library use Minerva, the Library Catalog, and type in the title of the book or the name of the editor, last name first.

ARTICLES

Periodical articles (like newspapers, magazines, and scholarly journals) will have volume and/or issue numbers and usually a day, month, or season of publication along with the year. Also, they will indicate the page numbers of the article.

Lancaster, Kurt "Neil Gaiman's 'A Midsummer Night's Dream': Shakespeare Integrated into Popular Culture" Journal of American & Comparative Cultures 23, no. 3 (2000 Fall): p. 69-77

Newspapers will often include the number of words in the article rather than the number of pages (since many news articles are fairly short). Page numbers will also often include the section (A, B, C, D, etc.) of the paper too (3E in this case).

Star Tribune (Minneapolis, MN), October 8, 2003, Wednesday, Metro Edition, VARIETY; BOOKS MIDWEEK; Pg. 3E, 680 words, ILLUSTRATED BOOKS; Neil Gaiman brings Morpheus back, Eric Hanson; Staff Writer

TIP: To find these, use Journal Finder from the library main web page <http://library.louisville.edu>. Type the name of the journal, magazine or newspaper (ex. Journal of American & Comparative Cultures or Star Tribune) NOT the title of the article.

GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS

Government documents will have the name of a federal government agency as the publisher or they will indicate that they have been published by the Government Printing Office (GPO).
