Consumer/Patient Health Information Services

Reference help –

Do you need information about health conditions, medical procedures, medicines, clinical trials, vitamins and supplements, diet and nutrition, or other health topics?

We can help you find accurate, current information from Internet resources and from our collection of books and journals.

Photocopying & Document delivery –

We provide copy machines at the Kornhauser Library for public use. Copies are 10¢ per page.

Some information on health care topics can be provided free of charge through email.

Internet resources –

The internet provides access to a large amount of information on health topics. How do you know what is accurate? How do you find information that you can understand?

Our website provides links to many internet resources on health topics that have been screened to insure reliability.

Training –

An important part of our Consumer Health Information Service is helping you find reliable health information. Whether you are seeking information for yourself or someone else, we can teach you how to search and what resources to use.

We will schedule training sessions for health care groups, libraries, religious organizations and others concerned about finding or providing quality health information.

Exhibits –

Exhibits Let us come to you ! We will attend your event to answer questions about finding health information and provide handouts on various information sources.

To schedule a training session or exhibit, please contact us at least three weeks before the event.
