Outreach Services to Health Professionals

Reference help –

Do you need information about health conditions, medical procedures, medicines, clinical trials, or other health topics as part of your professional practice?

We can help you find accurate, current information from databases, from Internet resources, and from our collection of books and journals.

Document delivery –

We provide copies of articles and other information on health issues from online sources and from our print collections whenever possible given copyright and licensing restrictions. Delivery will be via e-mail and some fees may apply.

Internet resources –

The internet provides access to a large amount of information. How do you know where to go to quickly locate information that is current and accurate?

Our website provides links to many internet resources for health professionals that have been screened for reliability.

Training –

An important part of our service is to provide training in the use of health information resources and how to obtain the best search results.

We will schedule training sessions at locations within a 120 mile radius of the Louisville Metro area.

One-On-One Instruction –

Individual instruction in the use of health information resources can be provided by appointment. Either come to the Kornhauser Library or we will come to you.

Exhibits & Demos –

We welcome to opportunity to exhibit or demonstrate health information resources at professional conferences or other events.

To schedule a training session or exhibit, please contact us at least three weeks before the event.
