

I am a native Louisvillian and studied Philosophy-Neuroscience-Psychiatry on a full scholarship in St. Louis, at Washington University. I chose a medical path in order to provide primary care services to underserved populations, with a special interest in immigrant health. Family Medicine provides a diversity of medical inquiry and procedural work; I enjoy UofL's breadth of inpatient coverage.

My interests include soccer, cooking, and records. I really like that Louisville has developed a great food and music scene.
