Partnering for the future

We might be named the University of Louisville, but we're a university dedicated to helping all Kentuckians, whether they live in Louisville, Appalachia or the Pennyrile. We're actively involved in every single one of the state’s 120 counties. This map showcases just some of our areas of activity.

Research Funding Soars

UofL’s NIH funding growth is the fastest in the nation among research universities, reflecting both the quality and quantity of studies being conducted here. Total annual research funding has grown from $28.9 million in 1999 to $101 million in 2007. Federal research funding increased from $15 million in 1999 to $67.2 million in 2007.

Cardinal Covenant

In fall 2007 UofL implemented Cardinal Covenant to assist students living at or below 150 percent of the federal poverty level. Eligible students receive funds to help pay for the cost of a UofL education. During the 2007–08 academic year, 169 students participated. UofL was the first college in Kentucky to implement such a program.

In 2007 UofL and the city announced a $2.2 billion plan to expand the health sciences center in downtown Louisville that will result in more than 8,500 new jobs. That’s in addition to UofL’s Signature Partnership, an initiative to bring campus resources to Louisville’s economically depressed West End.

Finding Answers to Cancer

Scientists at UofL’s James Graham Brown Cancer Center have more than 15 new cancer drugs under development — making it one of the top five centers for cancer drug development in the country. In 2007 Kosair Charities announced a $12.5 million gift to create a children’s cancer research program at the Brown Cancer Center.
