President James R. Ramsey
James Graham Brown Cancer Center/Kentucky
Cancer Program Survivors' Day Celebration
May 4, 2006
3 p.m.

Heather French Henry is the emcee. She will introduce Dr. Don Miller, who will speak first. Miller will discuss new developments at the Brown Cancer Center. She then will introduce President Ramsey. Remarks should be 3-5 minutes.

- Thank you, Heather.
- We have had many great opportunities to celebrate at U of L.
 - The opening of new buildings
 - The growth in our research
 - The success of students

- And yes, athletic achievements.
- But no -- NO -- celebration is more meaningful than our gathering today to celebrate you, our cancer survivors.
- On behalf of the entire University of Louisville family, we salute all you survivors here today (lead applause).
- At U of L we are dedicated to Finding Answers to Cancer.
- And we are, under the tremendous leadership of Dr. Don Miller.
- Dr. Miller told you about the exciting research we're doing at U of L. But we are participating in cancer prevention and treatment in other ways.

- We are doing our part to get the word out through the Kentucky Cancer Program.
- We are doing our part by partnering with Louisville Metro government on the Mayor's Healthy Hometown Initiative.
- We have implemented our "Get Healthy Now" program at U of L, with more than 2,000 of our employees participating.
- We know that we can all fight cancer and live better healthier lives – not only through research and by training the best cancer doctors – but also by living healthier lifestyles.
- Please join me once again in saluting the Brown Cancer Center, the Kentucky Cancer Program and all of the survivors here today as we celebrate all of our efforts to “Find the Answers to Cancer.”
