

Guidelines for the University of Louisville Distinguished Teaching Professor Awards

The Distinguished Teaching Professor Awards recognize the excellent teaching performed by faculty at UofL and the significant impact faculty has on students. Up to five awards may be given annually.

Each academic unit has a designated Unit Committee that officially compiles and transmits the nominations to the University-wide Selection Committee. The University-wide Selection Committee, including at least one previous awardee from each unit and division, screens the nominations for the final selection. To avoid undue advocacy on the part of the units, it is strongly urged that the Unit Committee chairperson not be nominated for the University-wide Selection Committee.

Each unit can nominate one full-time faculty nominee and one part-time faculty nominee. Full-time nominees must be tenured, tenure-track, or contracted. All nominees must have been employed by the University of Louisville for the five preceding years. The University-wide Selection Committee will screen the slate of nominees for up to four full-time faculty and one part-time faculty who will receive the award. Self-nomination is not permitted. Nominations to the Unit Committee are due Friday, March 15, 2019.

Awards are given to faculty selected by the University-wide Selection Committee. Recipients are awarded $1,000, an academic medallion, and will earn the title of Distinguished Teaching Professor. This title is honorary and not a Board-designated faculty rank. Awardees will be recognized in a ceremony on May 1, 2019. This award can only be received once during an individual's career.

Preparing the Nomination

A cover letter must accompany the nomination forwarded by the academic unit committee to the University-wide Selection Committee. It is imperative that the cover letter presents clear reasons for the nomination.

The first half of the nomination should include an introductory section, which not only includes the cover letter from the academic unit, but also evaluates the nominee in terms of some or all of the characteristics of distinguished teaching. The criteria used undoubtedly will vary from unit to unit; consequently, criteria for distinguished teaching should be clearly enumerated. A statement from the nominee about his or her teaching philosophy is also required.

The second half of the nomination should be constituted of supporting materials.

Each unit committee may submit only one full-time nominee and one part-time nominee to the President's Office by Friday, March 29, 2019.

GUIDELINES FOR THE UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE DISTINGUISHED TEACHING PROFESSOR AWARDS

In the past, units have shown an understandable and commendable desire to present the best case for a nomination. Although it is difficult to impose a limit, please restrict the number of letters of support to three (excluding the cover letter). Nominations of individuals who do not receive the award may be updated and resubmitted if the nominator wishes to have the nominee considered for an award during a succeeding year.
