

Essential Water

Clean running water is essential to America. It has become carved into our daily so much that we are almost oblivious to the rest of the world's struggles. Clean water is a necessity. Maybe if America was more aware, there would be more we could do.

In some countries they must dig wells, drink out of dirty streams, or not drink at all and die. Many diseases are spread by dirty water. It's sad that people living in these unfortunate countries are unaware of the devastation they live in.

If America was hit with a filthy water crisis, our economy would crash. I would worry! Every morning I would get out of bed worrying about my friends and family, and myself. Every time I would take a drink of water I would flinch, thinking about what it could do to my body! People would die and others would flee the country. It would be a much higher blow to the country than the depression ever was. Since American bodies have never fought off diseases in unclean water, our bodies wouldn't know how to react and we wouldn't be able to fight off any of the diseases.

If we help other countries with their water problems, maybe we would be able to defeat all diseases spread through dirty water. Then America would never have to worry about the diseases spreading to us.

Without clean running water America would be wiped out. Without clean running water we would all perish. Without clean running water, I would die.
