Strengths Highlight: Harmony

A theme that highlights your interactions with other people.

By: Pam Curtis

You look for areas of agreement. In your view there is little to be gained from conflict and friction, so you seek to hold them to a minimum. When you know that the people around you hold differing views, you try to find the common ground. You try to steer them away from confrontation and toward harmony. In fact, harmony is one of your guiding values. You can’t quite believe how much time is wasted by people trying to impose their views on others. Wouldn’t we all be more productive if we kept our opinions in check and instead looked for consensus and support? You believe we would, and you live by that belief. When others are sounding off about their goals, their claims, and their fervently held opinions, you hold your peace. When others strike out in a direction, you will willingly, in the service of harmony, modify your own objectives to merge with theirs (as long as their basic values do not clash with yours). When others start to argue about their pet theory or concept, you steer clear of the debate, preferring to talk about practical, down-to-earth matters on which you can all agree. In your view we are all in the same boat, and we need this boat to get where we are going. It is a good boat. There is no need to rock it just to show that you can.

Harmony sounds like:

I can remember vividly when I was 10 or 11 and some of the kids in my school would get into arguments. For some reason I would feel compelled to get in the middle of things and find the common ground. I was the peacemaker.

I like people. I relate to them easily because I am very strong in adjustment. I take the shape of the vessel into which I am poured, so I don’t irritate easily.

I know that I should have said something to the waiter about my steak not being cooked correctly, but I really didn’t want to raise a fuss and ruin the evening.

Summary: The Harmony theme is valuable to the campus community because of your ability to listen well and find common ground. You serve as a role model encouraging others to be peacemakers. University of Louisville functions better and achieves more because of what you do to bring people together to better accomplish our mission.
