

UofL Cooperative Consortium for Transdisciplinary Social Justice Research

IDEA INCUBATOR SESSIONS

The Consortium is dedicated to understanding and finding new, innovative solutions to complex, intransigent social justice problems with a special emphasis on structural inequality. The principal function of the Consortium is to incubate, support, and promote faculty and student involvement in University-wide social justice transdisciplinary research including research teams, projects, creative activities, and community-engaged scholarship. We seek to transcend traditional disciplinary boundaries that typically limit university research. The initial priorities build on existing strengths in faculty scholarly and creative activities across the University. These are: (1) Community Justice including Restorative Justice and Fair Housing; (2) Environmental Justice; (3) Emerging Justice Issues - providing an opportunity to respond to new social problems arising locally, nationally, or globally including Health Equity; and (4) Social Justice Issues in West Louisville.

In January 2017, the Consortium will host initial meetings of faculty who are interested in researching these issues.

- Restorative Justice - Monday, Jan. 23 from 12:00 - 1:30 p.m. in Ekstrom 254
- Housing Justice - Tuesday, Jan. 24 from 12:00 - 1:30 p.m. in Ekstrom W210
- Emerging Issues - Wednesday, Jan. 25 from 12:00 - 1:30 p.m. in Ekstrom 254

More Opportunities will be coming later this Spring!

See Call for Proposals for transdisciplinary research teams, due January 31, 2017, at <http://louisville.edu/braden> or <http://louisville.edu/aliinstitute>.