Colleagues,

I want you to know that the Campus Health team is working urgently toward verifying updates on all our campus vaccination numbers. At this time, we now know that at least 66.2 percent of students who come to campus have been vaccinated and Campus Health should have an updated employee vaccination rate in the next several days.

Starting this week, Campus Health is launching a series of pop-up vaccination events across campus to help us get our campus-wide vaccination rate up to 80 percent. Please help us reach 80 percent by getting vaccinated or reminding your colleagues and the students you teach or interact with to attend one of these vaccination events. Each week we will post the schedule of where the pop-up vaccination events will occur next. Here is this week’s schedule:

Any Cardinal who gets vaccinated at one of these events will receive a free university swag item and a voucher to use at campus restaurants and cafes (approximately $10 value). If you’ve already been vaccinated, we cannot thank you enough for doing your part and we welcome you to present your COVID-19 vaccination card and ID at one of these events if you would also like to pick up a prize.

Attached, you will find a copy of the mini flyers that Campus Health is trying to promote in as many places as possible. If you teach or work with students, they would especially appreciate you printing out a stack of these and making them available if feasible.

Finally, I want to remind you of the influence you have in our students’ lives. Sometimes, hearing a message from someone they know and interact with regularly can mean more than reading it in a university communication. I encourage you to use your next interaction with students to respectfully remind them that getting vaccinated is the best way we can fight this pandemic and the best way to ensure we can keep holding in-person classes and events. The vaccines available in the U.S. are safe and effective against contracting COVID-19 and particularly against serious disease and hospitalization. Getting vaccinated protects both ourselves and others.

Thank you for your continued dedication to the university during these uncertain and challenging times. We will continue to get through this together.

Take Care,
Lori
