Dear Research Community,

After careful consideration and consultation with the research community, I have made the decision to allow research operations to open more fully following the general university guidelines. In general, these guidelines are that all students, faculty and staff are required to wear masks or face coverings and practice physical distancing of at least six feet while on campus. You can find more detail here: <https://louisville.edu/coronavirus/health-protocols>. The previous communication (Sunday, August 9, 2020) regarding training in labs when six-feet separation is not possible remains in effect.

Sincerely,

Kevin
