

Enid Trucios-Haynes

Enid Trucios-Haynes is a full professor at the Louis D. Brandeis School of Law of the University of Louisville. She teaches constitutional law, immigration law, international law, and race and the law. Professor Trucios-Haynes' research and scholarship focuses on immigration law, constitutional law, and race and the law with an emphasis on Latin@ issues. Professor Trucios-Haynes currently is the University of Louisville Faculty Grievance Officer, a position she has held since 2010, and serves as Vice Chair of the Faculty Senate. She begins her term as Chair of the Faculty Senate in September 2016. Since 2014, Professor Trucios-Haynes has been the Interim Director of the Muhammad Ali Institute for Peace and Justice, a diversity unit within the Office of the Vice Provost for Diversity and International Affairs. She is the co-founder and co-director of the Brandeis Human Rights Advocacy Program, established in Spring 2014 through a grant from the Louisville Bar Foundation, and focused on immigrant and noncitizen rights. Professor Trucios-Haynes was the founder and director of the law school's Immigration Mini-Clinic (1998-2000), a pilot project and the only live-client clinical experience available to students at that time. She served as Associate Dean of Academic Affairs for the law school from 2004-2007.

Professor Trucios-Haynes graduated from Stanford Law School where she served as Associate Editor of the Stanford Law Review, and participated in the inaugural year of the school's Immigration Law Clinic. Her legal experience includes volunteer service at the Kingston Legal Aid Clinic in Kingston, Jamaica, the Lawyers Committee for Human Rights (now Human Rights First), and as a Senior Associate at the law firm of Fragomen, Del Rey, Bernsen & Loewy, the largest immigration law firm worldwide.
