Note: The number of years matriculating through the program include the year-long internship. We accept students at both the post-baccalaureate and post-master's levels. Students with master's degrees in Counseling Psychology or related fields may petition to have their coursework reviewed for possible waiver of certain course requirements. Waivers occur after reviewing syllabi and other course materials and determining consistency with departmental expectations and occurs following successful admission to the doctoral program. Theses and previous practicum training are similarly reviewed. Students with completed master's degrees in fields unrelated to counseling psychology may not be able to waive course requirements but again, will be reviewed.
