TEACHING & ADVISING

EVALUATIONS FOR THE PAST YEAR

According to last year's teaching evaluations, student evaluations under "Professor's presentations were ..." reported scores as 4.88, 4.75, 4.94, 4.82, and 5.00 – respectively – for the five classes that I taught in 2019. These scores suggest "excellent" as the average rating. Also, my overall teaching evaluations based on student feedback for my five classes in 2019 ranged from 4.62 to 5.00. In 2019, I had 112 enrolled students, which places me above the midpoint for the median number of students taught during an academic year despite my administrative appointments.

RESEARCH INTERESTS

PRIMARY RESEARCH THEME:

*Impacts of policy instruments on academic conceptions of lehrfreiheit (“freedom of teaching”) and lernfreiheit (“freedom of learning”)*

My research primarily examines the extent to which policy instruments or other legal actions (e.g., government mandates, judicial decisions, and legally binding, negotiated agreements) advance or inhibit the academic operations in terms of college teaching, learning, and knowledge creation. This stream rests heavily on concepts of civil rights and civil liberties.

In addition, my secondary research stream resides in professional/career education. Within that domain, I typically examine barriers and supports within organizational and governmental policies as well as investigate and evaluate system designs and organizational improvement efforts.
