

Scenario: Donovan Family

Donovan Family: Mike, Pat and their two-year-old son Joey have recently moved to a farm just outside a rural community to be closer to their extended family members.

Step 1: Gathering Information

Using the Interest-Based Everyday Activity Checklist (Swanson, Raab, Roper, & Dunst, 2006), the early intervention team learned that Joey loves to play in and with water, so much so that the family has been required to lock toilet lids and decrease the temperature of the hot water tank in their home because of Joey's interest in turning on/off the faucets. The family also shared that Joey likes to be outside.

Using the Asset-Based Context (ABC) Matrix (Wilson & Mott, 2006), the team learned more information about the activity settings and routines important to Joey and his family. They learned that Joey's mom and dad are farmers and the family enjoys growing all of their own food. The Donovans have a large extended family. Joey has 10 cousins close to his age who live within 30 minutes from his new home. The Donovans attend church every Sunday with their extended family members and then share Sunday dinner together. Mike and Pat also stated that Joey is not fond of napping and does not sleep through the night.

Mike and Pat shared their priorities of learning more about Joey's diagnosis of autism and how to help their family understand Joey better. Mike and Pat are anxious that Joey will not sit down at the dinner table for family meals, which they find particularly troublesome when the entire extended family share meals together on the weekend. Joey's parents also worry that his lack of sleep contributes to some of his agitation.

Step 2: Observe Families and Children

Once the above information was gathered, a member of the early intervention team observed a family mealtime with Mike, Pat and Joey. During the mealtime, Joey was agitated and would not join his parents at the table. Mike and Pat demonstrated strategies they had tried in the past and the practitioner had a few ideas that they implemented during the observation. Overall, everyone felt they had better ideas of how to get started on improving the family's mealtimes.

Step 3: Document IFSP Outcome Statements

During the IFSP meeting, the service coordinator reviewed and summarized the information that the Donovan family had shared as well as discussed the observations made by the early intervention team members. Together, the family and team decided upon the following outcomes.

1. Joey will join the family for meals at the dinner table on the weekends
2. Mike and Pat will know how to put Joey to bed for naps and at bedtime
3. Joey will help his parents water the garden and houseplants

Step 4. Mike and Pat will feel comfortable discussing Joey's diagnosis of autism with family and friends.

Checklist Description

This checklist includes a list of everyday activities that are sources of learning opportunities for children functioning between 15 and 36 months of age. The activities are a mix of things that children get to be involved in as part of everyday family and community life, things parents and children do together, things children become involved in because of adult interests and activities, and things that simply happen day-in and day-out as part of everyday living. The checklist is used to identify activities that are interest-based and would provide your child opportunities to learn and practice many different kinds of skills and behaviors. Simply follow the steps described below to make your child's learning full of wonderful possibilities.

Using the Checklists

Step 1. Identifying a Child's Interest. Start by making a list of all the things, people, places, and activities that interest your child. "What does your child enjoy doing?" "What gets your child excited?" "What does your child prefer or like to do?" "What makes your child laugh or smile?" "What does your child choose to do most often?" "Who does your child prefer to be with?" List your child's interests in the space provided on the next two pages.

Step 2. Completing the Checklist. Keep in mind your answers to the Step 1 questions. Go through the lists of activities on the next two pages, and check the activities that provide or could provide your child opportunities to use or express his or her interests. Add activities that are not included on the checklists that are important to your family or happen because of where you live and which are or would be interesting to your child. Don't overlook tag along activities that would include opportunities for interest-expression.

Step 3. Selecting Interest-Based Learning Activities. Go back through the list of activities you checked, and circle those activities that do or could happen often for your child and which best match your child's interests. The best activities are ones that provide lots of opportunities for a child to do things (s)he is interested in doing as well as learn new things.

Step 4. Develop an Action Plan. The last page of the checklist includes one way you can be sure you and your child can take advantage of all the learning possibilities that are part of your everyday family and community life. Simply complete each section and you will have a useful plan for providing your child interest-based everyday learning opportunities.

My Calendar[©]

An Assessment of Daily Routines, Activities, and Schedules for Young Children and Their Families

Protocol and Instructions

Family, Infant and Preschool Program
J. Iverson Riddle Developmental Center
300 Enola Road
Morganton, NC 28655

My Calendar® Instructions

The My Calendar® is an assessment tool for parents and practitioners in early childhood programs to document existing family routines and activities. The process is designed to assist family members to identify and prioritize specific routines and activities as potential areas of focus for support and intervention. The My Calendar® should be completed by one or more of the child's parents/primary caregivers with participation of an early childhood practitioner. The My Calendar® focuses on specifically identifying existing family schedules for each individual family member for each 24 hour period of each day of the week.

Information is gathered through conversations with parents/primary care providers, as well as through interactions with and observations of the child in natural environments and settings. Once the schedules of all family members are documented, parents and other primary caregivers are asked to indicate how well each specific time period is going and if support or focus is desired to improve the routine or activity that happens during that time period. Once the entire calendar is reviewed, then parents/primary caregivers are asked to prioritize the specific time periods where they would like to place focus and attention.

Using My Calendar®

Step 1. Completing the My Calendar® Start by filling out routines and activities for each family member important to your child. Be as specific as needed for each time slot for each 24 hour period for each day of a typical week.

Step 2. Determining the need for support Once the schedules are completed for each family member, have the parent(s)/caregiver(s) indicate if he or she feels that time of the day or night is going smoothly or needs attention. Indicate with an OK or Not OK by placing a checkmark in the appropriate column.

Step 3. Prioritizing routines and activities where support is desired Go back through the list of activities or routines that were checked to be "Not OK." Ask the parent/caregiver to circle the top priorities that were "Not OK." If more than three to five areas are checked "Not OK," ask the parent/caregiver to prioritize the top three routines to indicate where to begin focus or attention.

Step 4. Developing IFSP outcomes The last page of My Calendar® is a page for writing down possible Individualized Family Service Plan (IFSP) outcomes that may emerge as a result of the conversation. These outcomes can be further discussed and included on the child's IFSP document.

Name of Child: Joey Donovan

Summary of Child's Present levels of Functioning:

Joey is a two year old little boy who lives on a farm with his mom and dad. His favorite thing in the universe is water. He enjoys being outside as much as possible. He lets his parents know what he wants by taking them to it or squealing. When he is happy or excited he smiles and flaps his hands. He bangs on the door or window to let them know he wants to go outside. Joey does not take naps and sleeps intermittently during the night for approximately six hours. Joey eats well, including fruits and vegetables, but walks around while eating and will not join the family at the dinner table. Joey can run fast, jump, and climb trees. He loves riding in the family tractor and on the riding lawn mower. His parents describe the humming as an expression of happiness and contentment

GOAL/OUTCOME #1: A. What we would like to see change:

Joey will join the family for meals at the dinner table on the weekends

B. What is happening now:

Joey will not sit at the table. He walks to the table, takes food from his plate, and then eats it with his hands/fingers while walking around. The family likes to dine outside for Sunday dinners. If outside, Joey tries to run down to the creek and will not eat as well as he does when inside.

C. Progress statement – How will we know we're making progress toward A; what will be different?

Joey will sit at the dinner table when the family dines inside.

GOAL/OUTCOME #2: A. What we would like to see change:

Mike and Pat know how to put Joey to bed for naps and at bedtime

B. What is happening now:

Mike and Pat try to put Joey down for naps during the day, but have recently given up. At bedtime, if he goes down by midnight it is a good night.

C. Progress statement – How will we know we're making progress toward A; what will be different?

Mike and Pat will establish a bedtime routine and get Joey to bed by 10:00 p.m. Mike and Pat will explore strategies for putting Joey down for naps and choose an approach that they can both agree upon.

GOAL/OUTCOME #3: A. What we would like to see change:

Joey will help his parents water the garden and houseplants

B. What is happening now:

Joey goes wild around water. He splashes, spills, and sprays the water. With the garden hose, Joey will spray it everywhere and chase after his parents or cousins once he gets the water turned on. Joey also will fixate on the faucets turning them off/on for up to 45 minutes, until Mike and Pat have to physically pry him away.

C. Progress statement – How will we know we're making progress toward A; what will be different?

Joey will play in the water with more control as not to damage the house or garden area and will stop chasing people with water. Joey will learn how to transition from a water play time to doing other things without tantrums.

GOAL/OUTCOME#4: A. What we would like to see change:

Mike and Pat will feel comfortable discussing Joey's diagnosis of autism with family and friends

B. What is happening now:

Mike and Pat have tried to explain Joey's autism with their family members and friends, especially Joey's grandparents. Mike and Pat feel that they think Joey just has behavior problems and the parents don't make him do anything he doesn't want to do.

C. Progress statement – How will we know we're making progress toward A; what will be different?

Mike and Pat will have accessed resources and supports to be able to bring up this topic with Joey's grandparents (both sets) and share with them their feelings about how the grandparents have responded to the information they've shared in the past.
