Intended Implementation date:

Case ID:

SC012263

The University of Louisville plans to close the Master of Education (M.Ed.) degree program in Instructional Technology. The program is being closed due to low enrollments and degree completions.

Students were informed of the program closure by faculty and were advised by faculty as to a course of action to complete their programs. Courses are offered in other programs and students will be allowed to complete their degree programs. Students will not receive any additional charges as a result of the closure.

No faculty or staff members will be affected by the closure. The faculty member teaching in the program retired.

The SACSCOC substantive change policy was revised in 2020. It includes many new requirements and changes to previous requirements. The Substantive Change Policy and Procedures and learning resources are available on the substantive change webpage at www.sacscoc.org.

The Board of Trustees of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges approves the closure of the Master of Education (M.Ed.) degree program in Instructional Technology.
