

Chair's Report
January 7, 2015

After reading a series of articles in the Chronicle of Higher Education on alcohol use and binge-drinking on college campuses, she was curious how the Alcohol-Edu Haven training had gone in the fall semester. She said they reported a 97 percent compliance rate and she is inviting them to the February meeting for an update.

Willihnganz said university faculty need new training on how to handle sexual harassment claims, as new federal guidelines require faculty members to report these incidents if they become aware of them. Feldhoff said she would pursue the matter further.
