Give us a piece of your mind

International students: fill out short responses to each question based on your experience coming to the U.S.

U.S. students: fill out short responses based either on your transition to UofL, or if you have studied internationally you can choose to reflect on that experience and answer your questions accordingly.

In your transition here, what is one thing you have observed or experienced that you didn't expect?

What's one thing that has made your transition easier? More difficult?

What is one way that your point of view affects how you feel about the immigration debate?

Based on your experience, what is the biggest difference between being a student at UofL versus your home country/where you're from?

What's one thing you wish people knew or understood about your country of origin/where you're from?

How does studying in the U.S./UofL help you achieve your goals?
