Research

Principal Investigator:

Supporting Resilience among Re-entered Seniors (SRRS) 2023-
University of Louisville Raymond A. Kent School of Social Work & Family Science

The SRRS Project aims to 1) Gather insights from older adults who re-entered their communities from incarceration regarding their specific strengths, challenges, and desires for knowledge and skill-building and 2) Develop, implement, and evaluate a pilot psychoeducational group for preliminary efficacy, appropriateness, and acceptability.

Liberate LGBTQ: Health Among LGBTQ Persons in Prison 2022-

Stephanie Grace Prost, PhD

Stephanie.prost@louisville.edu | University of Louisville

Patterson Hall, 203 Louisville, Kentucky

University of Louisville Raymond A. Kent School of Social Work & Family Science

This study utilizes cross-secondary data to analyze and report on health and health care experiences among LGBTQ inmates and to examine potential differences by LGBTQ identity.

Older Adults in Kentucky State Prisons (OAK) Study

2017-

University of Louisville Raymond A. Kent School of Social Work

The OAK study is a two-phase, sequential mixed-method and longitudinal effort aimed at identifying and describing the 1) health, quality of life, and justice-related experiences of older adults and the 2) strengths and barriers of programming and services for older adults in Kentucky prisons.

The Perception Gap in Prison Healthcare: Correlates of Patient-Caregiver Inter-rater Agreement 2015-2023

University of Louisville Raymond A. Kent School of Social Work

Study aims relate to the identification and description of the presence, magnitude, and correlates of inter-rater agreement of quality of life ratings between patients and their peer caregivers in prison healthcare settings.

Needs Assessment to Enhance Financial Well-being for Successful Re-entry

2016-

University of Louisville Raymond A. Kent School of Social Work

Study aims include identify and describe 1) financial wellbeing, health, and quality of life in returning citizens and 2) relationships among salient variables to construct an informational foundation for later implementation and evaluation of an intervention to increase financial wellbeing for persons facing re-entry.

Quality of Life in Law Enforcement Officers: The Effects of Stress, Trauma, and Coping 2015-2023

University of Louisville Raymond A. Kent School of Social Work,

University of Michigan School of Social Work,

Florida Institute for Family Violence Studies

Study seeks to examine independent and interactive relationships among stress, trauma, adaptive and maladaptive coping, and quality of life in law enforcement officers. Study also seeks to compare self-reported quality of life in various criminal justice professions and to examine viability and factor structure of multiple short forms of the PCL-C.

Co-Principal Investigator:

Music Therapy in Correctional Health Care: Health Professionals Perspectives of Practice (HPPP) 2021-

University of Louisville Raymond A. Kent School of Social Work,

University of Louisville School of Music
