Symposium Overview

This program is the 2015 edition of the Annual Geriatrics Symposium presented by the University of Louisville Institute for Sustainable Health & Optimal Aging. Now in its 15th year, the symposium has become increasingly interdisciplinary in focus, attracting health professionals and providers across the spectrum of geriatric care. Fittingly, given the theme of this year's program, the keynote address "Fitness for Life" will be presented by nationally recognized senior care physical therapy expert Dr. David Morris from the University of Alabama at Birmingham.

Target Audience

Multidisciplinary including physicians, nurses, nursing home administrators, residents, students, staff as well as care providers.
