

Greetings Members of the Health Science Campus Community!

The University of Louisville House Staff Council is seeking to recognize three of our most outstanding House Staff at the University of Louisville. We will be giving three awards (see details below) and are looking to you, members of the community, to let us know who is most deserving. Nominations will be accepted until Friday, March 26th, 2021 at 5pm.

Please provide the Resident/Fellow's name and a short 2-4 sentence description of why you think they should win in the link below. The identities of the nominators will be kept confidential. Final winners will be selected by the House Staff Council selection committee.

House Staff of the Year Award: This award should be given to the resident or fellow who best overall embodies the mission of the University to provide excellent patient care (either directly or indirectly), advance their field through scholarly activity, educate other residents and students, and be an excellent example of professionalism.

Resident/Fellow with Outstanding Achievement in Scholarly Activity: This award should be given to the resident or fellow who has achieved the most to further his or her field through scientific pursuit. Publications (both number and quality) as well as other scholarly activity such as presentations, quality improvement, etc should be considered.

Resident/Fellow with Outstanding Achievement in Community Engagement: This award should be given to the resident or fellow who has best embodied the University mission of service to and engagement of the community. A leadership role, even over a small part of the project, is essential.
