City Information for Urology Candidates

Location

Louisville is a comfortable driving distance to many cities...

- ❖ 2 hrs to Cincinnati, OH
- ❖ 4 hrs to Columbus, OH
- ❖ 2 hrs to Indianapolis, IN
- ❖ 3 hrs to Nashville, TN
- ❖ 6 hrs to Chicago, IL

Climate

Louisville experiences four distinct seasons. Summer comes quicker while fall tends to last longer, and the relatively short winters bring more rain than snow.

The hottest month of the year tends to be July and the coldest month is January. May is usually the wettest month while October is the driest. (Source: www.weather.com and www.wikipedia.com).

For summer in Louisville, shorts and short-sleeved shirts are a must. In the winter be sure to own boots, thick winter jackets, and a rain coat.

Also, it is pertinent to dress in layers in the winter (thick socks, scarves, hats, etc.). Spring and fall climates fluctuate so always keep a sweater or light jacket close by.

Visit <http://www.crh.noaa.gov/lmk/> for severe weather warnings and continuous weather updates in the Louisville area.

UofL Benefits

Life Insurance

Term life insurance is provided for all residents, in the amount of $2000 of life insurance for each $1000 of annual stipend. Accidental death and dismemberment coverage is included.

Health Insurance

Single and family coverage is available at group rates. Several different plans at varying costs are available to choose from. Residents may choose Premium Conversion, which permits payment of premiums with pre-tax dollars.

Workers Compensation

All residents are covered by workers compensation for medical expenses and lost work time due to job-related illness or injury.

Disability Insurance

Long-term disability insurance is provided for residents, free of charge. Residents have the option of converting the coverage from group to individual at the end of their training, and the option of purchasing additional coverage at very reduced rates.

Malpractice Insurance

Coverage is provided for all residents by either the University of Louisville or by the hospitals to which residents are assigned. This coverage applies to all assigned rotations that are part of residency training, as detailed on the reverse side of the resident agreement.

Dental Care and Coverage

The Faculty Practice Office in the Outpatient Care Center will provide annual examination, including cleaning and x-rays, to residents free of charge. Residents can call 852-5401 for information. Residents may also purchase, at group rates, dental insurance in both single and family plans.

Medical Licensure

Kentucky state law requires that all PGY-2 and above trainees be licensed to practice medicine in the state of Kentucky. The fee for the initial training license is paid by the Graduate Medical Education Office for the PGY-1's who continue as PGY-2's in U of L programs.

Campus Health Service Office

Hepatitis B immunization and an annual TB skin test are required and furnished free of charge to all residents. The Campus Health Services Office provides minor urgent medical care and immunizations, including boosters and TB testing. Personal counseling is also available. The Campus Health Services Office also serves as an on-site treatment facility for workers compensation related injuries and exposures including needle sticks, and as the repository of resident immunization records and exposure data. The office is staffed by board certified faculty physicians and faculty nurse practitioners who have extensive primary care and occupational exposure experience.

Vacation (Annual Leave)

PGY-1..... 3 weeks annually

PGY-2/above.....4 weeks annually

At the discretion of the Program Director, an additional 2 weeks may be permitted for personal or educational leave. In addition, Program Directors may grant one additional week vacation to PG-1's.

Lab Coats

Lab coats are provided by departments for residents at the beginning of their training.

Physician Placement Service

The University of Louisville Physician Placement Service Office provides assistance to residents and others seeking practice opportunities in Kentucky. This is a free service to residents.

Library Privileges and Services

Residents have library privileges at the medical school library (Kornhauser Health Sciences Library) and at all affiliated hospitals. Available services include electronic literature searches and interlibrary loan service. Audiovisual equipment, as well as computers and computer software, are made available to residents through the library. Through the Kornhauser Library's website (<http://library.louisville.edu/kornhauser/>), residents have access to thousands of electronic journals via Medline and online e-journal collections. Residents can search the library's catalog or view a collection of electronic textbooks and reference materials online.

Counseling Services

Professional counseling is available to residents through the Health Sciences Center Campus Health Services. Counseling services are also available through the University of Louisville Employee Assistance Program.

Recreational Facilities

Free membership to the HSC Fitness Center is available to all HSC residents, students, staff and faculty. The Fitness Center is conveniently located in the Chestnut Street Parking Garage, and includes weight machines, free weights, and 20 pieces of aerobic equipment. Aerobics and yoga classes are also offered. In addition, a swimming pool and recreational facilities on Belknap Campus are also available to residents, through the Intramural and Recreational Sports Office, the Student Activities Center, and Crawford Gymnasium.

Medical and Personal Leave

Paid medical leave up to 90 days is available in cases of extended personal illness. Residents are covered under the Graduate Medical Student Leave Policy, which provides up to 12 weeks unpaid leave for personal or family illness. Personal leave is available at the discretion of the Department Chair.

Couples Match

The University of Louisville welcomes applicants who plan to participate in NRMP as a couple. Be sure to indicate on your application that you will be participating in the couples match and give the name of your partner and the program that he or she is applying to.

Maternity/Paternity Leave

Female residents may use a combination of vacation and personal time to cover up to 42 days of paid post-partum leave. Leave of absence longer than 42 days is taken as unpaid leave. Male residents may use annual leave or unpaid leave under the Graduate Medical Student Leave policy.

Dependent Care Spending Account

Residents may establish an account to convert tax-free benefit dollars within the limits established by the IRS. The monies are reimbursed to the resident for expenses incurred for dependent care of children.

Parking

Resident stipends include an allotment of $500 to cover the cost of a parking permit. Residents may choose where to purchase their parking permit.

Other Benefits

Some departments provide additional benefits to their residents, such as textbooks, professional dues, or funds for travel to educational meetings.

Louisville Dictionary

The Belle of Louisville: The oldest Mississippi-style steamboat in operation located at Waterfront Park in downtown Louisville.

The Brown/ The Seelbach/ The Galt House: Three of Louisville's premiere hotels which are all located downtown.

Hot Browns: The Hot Brown is an open-faced sandwich that contains turkey and bacon and is covered in Mornay sauce and baked until the bread is crisp causing the sauce to turn brown in color. The sandwich was first created at the Brown Hotel in Louisville.

Gene Snyder Freeway: What locals have named I-265 in Louisville.

Kentuckiana: Louisville sits right on the borders of Southern Indiana. As such, many residents of the Indiana border cities, namely Jeffersonville, Clarksville, New Albany, and Corydon, come to Louisville to work, eat, drink, and shop. Additionally, the cities are in such close proximity that the local media outlets cover news in all of the cities. The result of this combined media coverage resulted in a term that refers to both Louisville and Southern Indiana – Kentuckiana. You'll hear this word used in general conversation, hear it on the news, and read it in the paper daily.

Lee Hamilton Highway: What locals have named I-265 in Indiana.

Lewisville vs. Looavull vs. Looaville vs. Luhvull: A sign on the front of the Louisville Visitors Center mocks the different ways that people pronounce the name of our city: "Lewisville," "Looeyville," "Looavull," "Looaville," and "Luhvull." Phonetically, it would seem that the "Lewisville" or "Looeyville" pronunciations would be correct. However, pronouncing the name of your new home either of those ways is sure to give you away as an outsider. The pronunciation that most Louisville residents use is "Looavull," though "Looaville" and "Luhvull" aren't uncommon. Taken directly from:

<http://louisville.about.com/od/neighborhoodscities/tp/ThingsYouNeedToKnow.htm>

Louisvillians: Term for the native peoples of Louisville.

Watterson Expressway: What locals have named I-264.
