Reason for Policy:

The University of Louisville is committed to fostering an environment that is fair, psychologically healthy, respectful, safe, and free of sexual and discriminatory harassment. It is fundamental to the University's mission that the professional responsibilities of its employees be carried out in a manner that is free of conflicts of interest, favoritism, and situations that create unfair advantages.

Intimate relationships have inherent risks when they involve one member of the University community who has supervisory or other evaluative responsibility over another individual; further, such relationships create perceived or actual conflicts of interest and perceptions of unfair advantage. There are also inherent risks in any intimate relationship between individuals in unequal positions of power (such as teacher and student, supervisor and employee). Such relationships may undermine the real or perceived integrity of the supervision and evaluation provided, and the trust inherent in such relationships. Moreover, presently or retrospectively, the relationship may be less consensual than what is believed by one or both parties, especially by the individual whose position confers power.

Furthermore, such relationships may harm or injure others in the academic or work environment. Relationships in which one party is in a position to review the work or influence the career of the other may provide grounds for complaint when that relationship gives, or creates the appearance of, favoritism or unfair advantage to the person involved in the relationship, or when it restricts opportunities or creates a hostile environment for others.

In circumstances when sexual harassment is alleged as the result of an intimate relationship, the existence of the intimate relationship is not a per se violation of the Title IX Employee Sexual Misconduct Policy, Title IX Student Sexual Misconduct Policy, or Reports of Bias, Discrimination, and Harassment Policy. However, the apparent consensual nature of the relationship is inherently suspect due to the fundamental asymmetry of power. Past consent does not remove grounds for or preclude a charge or subsequent finding of sexual harassment based upon subsequent unwelcome conduct.

Statement:

For the foregoing reasons, the following types of intimate relationships are prohibited:

- a. An instructor, staff or administrator (including but not limited to a faculty member, part-time lecturer, academic advisor, athletic coach, residence hall professional staff) and an undergraduate student;
- b. An instructor, staff or administrator and a graduate or professional student, when the instructor, staff or administrator has a current or expected supervisory or instructional role with the student or when the instructor, staff or administrator and student are in the same academic school, college, program or department;
- c. A graduate or professional student and an undergraduate, graduate, or professional student when there is a supervisory or instructional role; and
- d. A supervisor and the supervisor's direct report.

Moreover, any employee (faculty, administrator, or staff) or other person in an instructional or supervisory role, who was in a past intimate relationship with a student is prohibited from serving in a supervisory or instructional role, directly or indirectly, of that student.

Other intimate relationships in which one party has power or authority over the other may also violate this policy.

For definitions of "intimate relationship", "instructor", "staff", "student", "direct report", "instructional role", and "supervisory role", refer to the Definitions section below.

EXCEPTIONS OR EXCLUSIONS

In circumstances where there is no supervisory or instructional role, requests for exceptions to this policy may be approved by the Executive Vice President and University Provost or designee in cases involving faculty or administrators; by the enrollment unit dean or designee in cases involving graduate or professional students; or by the Vice President for Human Resources or designee in cases involving staff. No exception will permit continuation of a supervisory or instructional role between a faculty member and a student who are, or were, in an intimate relationship, or between a supervisor and the supervisor's direct report. Further, exceptions should not adversely affect the student's academic progress or the direct report's opportunity for advancement within the University.

This policy does not apply to relationships involving family, marriage, or domestic partnership in the employment context. Such relationships are governed by the University's Nepotism policy.

Complaints alleging sexual harassment or sexual misconduct directed at a student, faculty, or staff member are resolved under the University's Title IX Employee Sexual Misconduct Policy, Title IX Student Sexual Misconduct Policy, and/or the Reports of Bias, Discrimination, and Harassment Policy, which prohibits unwanted behavior of a sexual nature. Conduct that may have initiated in an intimate relationship can be determined to be sexual harassment at any time the behavior becomes unwelcomed. In its sole discretion, the University reserves the option to review and address conduct and reports under more than one of these policies in order to address a complaint. The highest priority and deference will be given to the resolution of complaints of sexual harassment or sexual misconduct.

REPORTING CONDUCT COVERED BY THIS POLICY

Any employee (faculty, administrator, or staff) or other person in an instructional or supervisory role who is engaged in an intimate relationship as defined by this policy must report the relationship to the appropriate responsible officer as outlined in the Procedures section below. Upon receipt of the report, the responsible officer will evaluate whether the relationship is a violation of the policy and will determine a response after appropriate consultation. Failure to self-disclose such relationships may constitute a violation of this policy.

Any employee who becomes aware of conduct that may be prohibited by this policy should report the conduct as outlined in the Procedures section of this policy, which includes the option to report anonymously through the University's compliance hotline.

CONFIDENTIALITY

In order to encourage self-disclosure of intimate relationships and to empower members of the University community to report perceived policy violations, the University will make every reasonable effort to treat all information received in the course of addressing a self-disclosure or concern in a manner that protects, to the extent permissible by law, the confidentiality of all parties.

FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH THIS POLICY

Employees who fail to abide by this policy and associated procedures will be subject to remedial and/or disciplinary action in accordance with the Redbook and other University policies and procedures. Employees and students may grieve such action or initiate a formal complaint in accordance with provisions of the Redbook and other University policies and procedures.

RETALIATION

Retaliation against persons reporting concerns about conduct that may violate this policy is prohibited and constitutes a violation of this policy and the University's policy on Duty to Report and Non-Retaliation (ICO-1.01).

c. Resolution of a complaint or self-disclosure by an employee.

1. Once a recipient receives a complaint or a self-disclosure, the recipient will forward the information to the University Integrity and Compliance Office who will evaluate the complaint allegations and route them to the Office of Legal Compliance and Investigations for appropriate outreach and determination if the allegations are within the scope of one of the University's Title IX policies. If the complaint allegations are within the scope of one of the University's Title IX policies, then the Title IX policy and investigative procedures will take precedent over any other review. If outside the scope of the Title IX policy, then the appropriate responsible officer will review and determine if there is a violation of the Intimate Relationship Policy, and if so, after appropriate consultation, any corrective and/or disciplinary action. Responsible officers are:

3. In consideration of all information received, the responsible officer shall then implement the remediation and/or discipline. That individual will also maintain a record of such action.

4. An employee may request an exception to the policy, although exceptions will be granted only in rare and unusual circumstances. No exception will permit continuation of a supervisory or instructional role between a faculty member and a student who are, or were, in an intimate relationship, or between a supervisor and the supervisor's direct report. Exceptions should not adversely affect the student's academic progress or the direct report's opportunity for advancement within the University. In a case involving a student, the employee or other individual in an instructional role is responsible for disclosing the existence of the relationship. In a case involving employees engaged in an intimate relationship, the employee holding the position or role of higher rank or power at the University is responsible for disclosing the relationship.
