

COLLEGE OF ARTS & SCIENCES

The University of Louisville Political Science Department is announcing a new opportunity for students interested in graduate school!

Master of Arts in Political Science: Applied Concentration in Digital Politics

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN

An advanced degree in Political Science with an applied focus in Digital Politics?

A degree that combines your love of politics with high-demand skills in information technology?

Crafting social media advocacy or writing narratives for non-profit organizations?

Overseeing online political operations, and performing significant online political research?

HOW IT WORKS

In addition to core classes dedicated to politics in the digital age, each student will complete a required internship in lieu of directed research or thesis. This will give students real-world digital politics skills while facilitating career-oriented networking.

All classes are taught by engaged faculty-scholars with expertise in the field.

FUNDING

We offer a limited number of Graduate Assistantships each year which include tuition and stipend.

Learn more at: louisville.edu/politicalscience, or email polisci@louisville.edu