As a note, this did not include all of SAB events, particularly those that appeared to have an all white audience.

SAB and George Howe, through the Red Barn event fund, often co-sponsor events with student groups in order to stretch limited resources and to increase the participation in events (student groups encourage their members to participate who in turn encourage other students to participate). In order to support our NPHC groups they were given priority in scheduling on Friday nights and provide space for their "week" of events, most of which are open to the public. In the past when SAB tried to sponsor events on Fridays for African-American students without the NPHC, they were either not very successful or the NPHC groups expressed concerns about their ability to fundraise.
