Jamieca's Tips for Success

Treat Yo Self

Mid-term season is here! If the semester hadn't kicked in yet, I'm sure it has by now. More than ever, make sure you are taking time out for taking care of yourself and doing things that bring you joy. Listen to music. Read a book. Take a nap. Grab lunch with a friend. It doesn't have to be something extravagant like a day at the spa which is still nice. The Counseling Center and Health Promotion are great campus resources to help you navigate the tougher days.

Fall Transitions

I love the fall. Cozy sweaters. Hot chocolate. Chili. Especially for folks not from Louisville, I encourage you to visit see all that Fall brings to Louisville. Go to one of our many local coffee and tea shops like Sis Got Tea, a Black-, Queer-, Woman-owned business. See the fall colors at one of our many parks like Cherokee Park. Take a walk through the Speed Art Museum, FREE to all UofL students, Faculty and Staff. Just get out and explore!

Stop by and see us in the Cultural & Equity Center! A great place to study (we have study rooms), hang out with friends, and get connected to the amazing CEC team and our resources.

In solidarity,

Jamieca Jones, MSSW, M.A. Interim Director, Women's Center

GRANDMOTHER POWER! ORAL HISTORY PROJECT KICK-OFF SCHEDULE AN INTERVIEW!

What thoughts, dreams or choices did my grandmother make – when she was my age? How has the world changed in her lifetime? What can I learn from her?

Join the Women's Center at Grandmother Power! Oral History Project featuring multicultural stories between grandmothers and their grandchildren in Kentucky. The conversations will amplify the power of intergenerational connections, cultural knowledge, and reflection about gender equity issues across time with project participants. The Women's Center's project will be a collaboration with the UofL Ekstrom Library's Oral History Center.

COMMUNITY CONNECTIONS RESOURCE GUIDE

STUDENT-PARENT CONNECTIONS INTEREST FORM

STUDENT-PARENT ASSOCIATION

In 2011, a group of determined student-parents came together to create the Student-Parent Association (SPA), recognizing how important it is to support fellow students navigating the challenges of parenthood while pursuing their education. Fast forward to 2024, and SPA is still going strong, passionately amplifying the voices of student-parents at UofL.

The need for community is universal, and SPA knows this better than anyone. As both students and parents, this group finds themselves at a unique crossroads one that's often overlooked by universities. From a lack of affordable family housing to limited childcare support and resources, student-parents face challenges that deserve more attention.

To help bridge these gaps, SPA teamed up with the UofL Women's Center to create a brand-new Community Connections Resource Guide. This guide is packed with useful resources designed to make the journey a little smoother for student-parents.

During the unveiling of this guide, SPA took a moment to honor their advisor, Phyllis Webb, Program Coordinator of the Women's Center, with an Award of Excellence for her incredible dedication and commitment to supporting student-parents. A welldeserved shoutout for an outstanding advocate!

The Student-Parent Association is a student organization advised under the Women's Center.

ADVOCACY IN ACTION Diversity in Education

Taylor Martin (She/Her) Class of 2025 United Nations Association - Women Advocacy Chair

Historical Context

The University of Louisville has a history of witnessing the power of collective action. Students, teachers, and community members have allied to demand changes to the University's demographics, curriculum, and initiatives to create a diverse, equitable, and inclusive institution. In 1950, the University responded to increasing pressures and officially desegregated its schools in 1951, three years before the United States Supreme Court ruled that segregated schools were unconstitutional. In continuation with the momentum for social change, Black students led the fight in the late 1960s and early 1970s to demand curriculums that reflected the ideals of democracy and diversity the nation was beginning to champion. Their leadership and activism established the Pan-African Studies Department and paved the way for additional departments, such as Latin American Studies and Women, Gender, and Sexuality Studies.

In the years following, the University established and promoted various initiatives to help foster inclusivity, accessibility, and diversity. For instance, scholarships and financial aid, namely the Woodford F. Porter Scholarship Program and the Martin Luther King Jr. Scholars Program, were established to act as a great equalizer in education and provide minority students the opportunity to earn a college degree without the fear of excessive student debt. Moreover, programs like the Cultural Center, Muhammad Ali Institute for Peace and Justice, the Women's Center, and the LGBT Center were founded to enhance students' sense of belonging by facilitating community-building across different identities. Such initiatives have played a crucial role in addressing historical barriers and positively shaping students' experiences in higher education.

Current Context

In the last legislative session, the Kentucky General Assembly attempted to pass anti-DEI bills, which would have barred colleges and universities from spending 'any resources' on 'diversity, equity and inclusion offices' or 'initiatives.' University leaders released statements condemning the bills, and students joined the opposition, hosting rallies across the Commonwealth. Despite public criticism, the Kentucky General Assembly reaffirmed its intent to continue its efforts this year. Succumbing to political pressures, the University of Kentucky and Northern Kentucky University disbanded their offices responsible for diversity initiatives in August. In September, representatives from Kentucky's higher education institutions presented their impact reports to lawmakers who questioned and dismissed its significance. The question now is, will you stand by and watch as lawmakers, who are predominately white males, strip colleges and universities of diversity initiatives? You, the audience, have the power to shape history with your actions. Do you care about students of all backgrounds feeling welcomed and supported in higher education? How do you want history to remember your actions?

Action Plan

- Register to vote by October 7th and make your voice heard on Election Day, November 5th
- Contact your legislators to affirm your support for DEI in higher education
- Collaborate with school and community organizations to protest against curtailing DEI in colleges
- Urge your school representatives to defend and protect DEI
- Spread the word about attacks on DEI and encourage others to take action

No one has to do everything... everyone has to do something. What's your Green Dot?

Green Dot is a comprehensive violence prevention strategy with a focus on preventing Power Based Personal Violence; sexual violence, dating violence and stalking. The strategy incorporates a public health approach to violence prevention, by working across the socio-ecological model. Green dots are the small actions we take everyday that will shift our culture to one where Power Based Personal Violence is not accepted.

BATTLING Period Poverty in Kentuckiana

Reina Kempt (She/Her) For Lady's Sake, President and Executive Director

For Lady's Sake is a nonprofit organization committed to ensuring everyone has access to essential period products. It aims to break down barriers and stigmas associated with menstruation, making period products accessible to all.

The organization was founded in 2016 after a Dollar Tree store run by Candice Crawford. A young lady who was standing outside of the store approached her, and Candice thought this would be like every other encounter she had with a person experiencing homelessness -- an ask for money or food. As she reached for her purse to help, the young lady had a different request. She was in need of period products and did not want to soil some of the only clothes she owned. This sparked an idea to fill that need for so many in need, and Candice erected For Lady's Sake in response.

Through our strategic partnership with Jacob's Ladder Outreach, Goodwill and other local organizations, we've been able to provide women with period products on a weekly basis with the aim of expanding our impact. The long-term goal is to install free period product dispensers in Louisville's public park restrooms.

To raise money toward these efforts, For Lady's Sake will host its inaugural Dining for Dignity Breakfast fundraiser at 10 a.m. Saturday, October 19 at Stella's Venue.

The event's date was intentionally chosen to coincide with National Period Day in an effort to raise awareness and funds to support menstrual equity in the greater Louisville Metropolitan area.

General admission tickets, which include food by Biscuit Belly and coffee by Heine Bros., are now on sale for $20 with sponsorship options available. Both can be purchased on Eventbrite by searching "Dining for Dignity" or scanning the QR code above.

Poet extraordinaire Robin G will host the event with DJ Stacey Broadway providing the musical entertainment. Robin G will also be debuting a poem inspired by a woman's experience with menstruation. Other events include a silent auction, a cash mimosa bar and a proclamation presented by Deputy Mayor Nicole George. PACE 19
